Places of Interests:

1. Niagara falls

An unstoppable flow of rushing water surges over the arcing fault in the riverbed with thunderous force. Great plumes of icy mist rise for hundreds of meters as the waters collide, like an ethereal veil concealing the vast rift behind the torrent. Thousands of onlookers delight in the spectacle every day, drawn by the force of the current and the hypnotic mist.

2. CN Tower

Toronto's iconic CN Tower, a marvel of 1970s engineering, looks like a giant concrete hypodermic needle. Its function as a communications tower takes a backseat to relieving tourists of as much cash possible – riding those glass elevators up the once-highest freestanding structure in the world (553m) is one of those things you just have to do in Toronto. Even if you don't, you're bound to catch a glimpse of the tower at night, when the entire structure puts on a brilliant free light show year-round.

3. Ripley's Aquarium of Canada

Toronto's newest attraction for young and old. Expect over 15,000 aquatic animals, 5.7 million liters of water in the combined tanks, as well as sleepovers, touch tanks and educational dive presentations.

4. Canada's Wonderland

Amusement park lovers will want to trek to this, Canada's largest, featuring over 60 rides including the mammoth Leviathan, with a peak height of 93m! There's also an exploding volcano, 20-hectare Splash Works water park and white-water canyon.

5. Royal Ontario Museum

Celebrating its centennial in 2014, the multidisciplinary ROM is Canada's biggest natural history museum and one of the largest museums in North America. You'll either love or loathe the synergy between the original heritage buildings at the main entrance on Bloor St and the 2007 addition of 'the Crystal,' which appears to pierce the original structure and juts out into the street like a massive shard.

6. Toronto Zoo

This large, modern zoo has over 5000 animals with stars such as pandas, rhinos and polar bears. It even tweets the hours when you can meet its newborn animals.

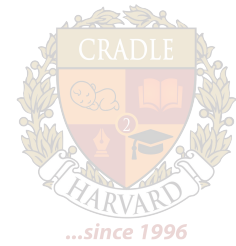

7. Royal Botanical Gardens

Northwest of Hamilton, Canada's largest and most spectacular botanic gardens comprise over a thousand hectares of trees, flowers and plants, including numerous rare species. There's also a rock garden, an arboretum and a wildlife sanctuary with trails traversing wetlands and wooded ravines. From June to October, thousands of delicate jewels bloom in the Centennial Rose Garden, and in spring over 125,000 flowering bulbs awaken in an explosion of color.

8. University of Toronto

The University of Toronto is a public research university in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, located on the grounds that surround Queen's Park. The university is commonly ranked as the best Canadian university, according to various major publications.

9. McMaster University

McMaster University is a public research university in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. The main McMaster campus is on 121 hectares (300 acres) of land near the residential neighbourhoods of Ainslie Wood and Westdale, adjacent to the Royal Botanical Gardens. In 2018, it was ranked the most research intensive university in Canada by Research Infosource, with the university receiving an average research income of $434,000 per faculty member, the highest in Canada.
